Learning Activities, Assignments, Tests, Quizzes and Examinations

There are two short in-class quizzes and four assignments in this course. The quizzes are worth 5% each; assignments 1 and 2 are worth 5% each and assignments 3 and 4 are worth 10% each. Learning goals and outcomes for each assignment are outlined below:

- Assignment 1 is focused on formatting and representing web content using HTML constructs. Students will apply their HTML skills of text formatting, special characters, lists, images and links. Correctness of the HTML code will be validated by an online validator.
- Assignment 2 revolves around the concept of separating web content from formatting/style using CSS. Students will create visually appealing web pages using their HTML and CSS skills. Proper use of CSS rules, selectors, and properties will be tested.
- Assignment 3 challenges students with page layout, navigation skills and responsive design. Students will create a small static website consisting of a few pages, with tractable navigation between the pages. Students are also expected to make the website suitable for rendering on both mobile devices and desktop browsers.
- Assignment 4 uses all building blocks studied so far to create a website (using an open source web framework) revolving around a brand or a business, implementing an effective UI to accomplish a specific goal. This assignment will emphasize client side scripting for form validation, user interaction, and asynchronous content loading using JavaScript and JQuery.

Evaluation criteria and submission guidelines will be posted in MyLearningSpace with each assignment as they come out. In general, both technical and aesthetic aspects of the deliverable will contribute to the assignment score. Assignment submission should include the following components:

- A cover page with student and assignment information
- Screenshot and/or print out of the final output
- Source code with inline comments as necessary
- A brief summary on lessons learned and challenges faced. The summary should not exceed 1 page and should be in bullet format.
